The Buzz About Craft Beers From Other Worlds

Established 2000

PRICING KEY

Our beer selection comes from suppliers around the world, with a variety of brewing techniques and ingredients, so it shouldn't surprise you that some beers cost more than others. See the legend below for individual prices per beer.

Two color scales are commonly used for describing beer: Standard Reference Method (SRM) and Lovibond. Brewers tend to use degrees Lovibond to measure the color of their malts, but generally measure the color of the finished beer in SRM. We, at the Saucer, use simple descriptors to help guide you through our beer list:

PALE = pale golden - straw or very pale copper

AMBER = copper - brown, but definitely not black

DARK = dark brown, chocolate - ebony.

Draughts are available in 16oz., 23oz., or 60oz. servings!

"We pour some Belgian Ales in their own special glassware and would like to get them back!"
